ADELAIDE WRITERS’ WEEK

3 – 8 MARCH 2018
FREE ENTRY
PIONEER WOMEN’S MEMORIAL GARDEN
Welcome
LAURA KROETSCH
Director, Adelaide Writers’ Week

Welcome to the 2018 program for Adelaide Writers’ Week. It is once again a pleasure to announce the writers who will gather with us in the Pioneer Women’s Memorial Garden.

This year the idea of change runs through the program, be it in terms of the climate, personal transformations, coming-of-age stories, political strife, radicalisation and the changes which are happening within the natural world.

Together we will consider the American South, the future of Australian farming, the personal essay, the power of the photograph, and we will look back at Australia’s political history and take a fresh look at a queen. With our guest writers we will consider war and peace, poverty and wealth, youth and age as well as a bit of rock & roll.

On behalf of Adelaide Festival, I thank the staff and the many sponsors and patrons who make this event possible. We again thank Trees for Life for generously growing the native plants that populate the garden.

As this is my final Adelaide Writers’ Week I would especially like to thank the audiences, writers and publishers who have made my tenure here such a delight.

Thank you for your support.

This year’s outstanding selection of international authors promises to make the 2018 Writers’ Week one of the most stimulating and enjoyable in the history of the event.

Political struggle, history, true and fictional crime, families and their secrets – these and many other themes will be explored in the pleasant and evocative surroundings of the Adelaide Parklands.

The State Government has always been a strong supporter of Writers’ Week, and we hope to continue to be long into the future.

We see it as an essential component of the Adelaide Festival, as a world-class literary gathering, and as an invaluable forum for the discussion of ideas and solutions in a turbulent world.

A much-loved and key component of the Adelaide Festival, Adelaide Writers’ Week 2018 will be the 33rd edition and the seventh since it went annual in 2012.

Adelaide Writers’ Week is among the great literary festivals of the world, adored by readers and writers alike. It takes enormous levels of support to make this unique cultural event possible and we sincerely thank our government, corporate and philanthropic partners for their immense generosity.

The 2018 Adelaide Writers’ Week, Laura Kroetsch’s final event as Director, is looking set to be one of the best yet. We are grateful for the contribution Laura has made to Adelaide Writers’ Week – under her direction, it remains an event that attracts some of the finest writers and thinkers in the literary community, dealing with ideas and issues that really matter.

I invite you, our audiences from near and far, to join us for six wonderful days under the trees in the Pioneer Women’s Memorial Garden.

In 2017 Mem Fox won the CBCA Nan Chauncy Award for her outstanding contribution to children’s literature. The citation reads, in part, “Mem Fox has become ‘a household name’ with children, families, students of literature and literacy and the broad community, in a stellar career spanning nearly 40 years.”

Born in Melbourne and raised in what was then Rhodesia, Fox studied drama in London before returning to Africa and eventually returning to Australia. Her professional life began at Flinders University where she studied children’s literature and wrote the first drafts of Possum Magic.

Fox has always maintained that teaching was her first love, writing second. She spent 24 years at Flinders as an Associate Professor in Literacy Studies. In that time she also published over forty books for children and adults.

Fox’s award-winning and best-selling titles include Wilfrid Gordon McDonald Partridge, Where is the Green Sheep?, Hattie and the Fox, Time for Bed, and most recently I’m Australian Too. Her work for adults includes her best-selling Reading Magic.

It is a great honour to dedicate Adelaide Writers’ Week 2018 to Mem Fox. She takes her place among past dedicatees Brenda Niall, Robert Dessaix, Margo Lanagan and Christopher Koch.

For many years Adelaide Writers’ Week has been held in the precinct of the Pioneer Women’s Memorial Garden. Since 2012 the garden itself has provided a beautiful setting for Adelaide Writers’ Week events.

In 1935, the year prior to South Australia’s Centenary, a Women’s Centenary Council representing 72 organisations raised money to fund a fitting memorial for the pioneer women of the state.

Five members of the council were appointed to form the Pioneer Women’s Memorial Trust. They were set the task of establishing a memorial chosen by the council, a Flying Sister base in Port Augusta, but were persuaded by Reverend John Flynn that a Flying Doctor base in Alice Springs was badly needed and thus the sixth base in Alice Springs was born. Most of the money was used to build the base and the remainder was earmarked for a memorial in Adelaide, thus the Pioneer Women’s Memorial Garden was established on land made available by City of Adelaide.

The garden was conceived by three people. Elsie Cornish was the landscape gardener; Ola Cohn sculpted Waikerie limestone into the timeless figure, a symbol of pioneer women; and George Dodwell, an astronomer, designed the sundial on the northern side of the statue. A plaque recording the opening of the garden and listing the founding trustees is mounted on the entrance gates. For many years the National Council of Women SA held a ceremony in the garden to pay tribute to the pioneer women of the state.

City of Adelaide maintains the garden and, alongside the current trustees, is committed to its role in South Australia’s history.

Crime Wave

It's a great year for crime as we welcome Louise Penny and her latest Armand Gamache novel, Glass Houses. This time Gamache is faced with a trial, a drug ring and mysterious stranger. Set in Ireland, Dervla McTiernan’s The Ruin sees a woman lose her boyfriend to a seeming suicide by drowning and an investigating detective makes a connection to a long ago crime. Thomas Mullen’s Darktown is a chilling account of Jim Crow Atlanta, where two black officers investigate the case of a fatally beaten black woman who was last seen with a white man.

Where We Met

This year brings together three very different stories about people and animals. Set in a South Australian community, Eva Hornung’s haunting novel The Last Garden tells the story of a young man who in his grief turns to animals for comfort. Science writer Jim Robbins’ The Wonder of Birds, explores the relationship between humans and birds and in particular the contributions of birds to our world. In Other Minds Peter Godfrey-Smith explores the intelligent alien that is the octopus and what they can teach us about consciousness.

The Self & The Story

This year memoirs shine and offer up some extraordinary real life stories. Patricia Lockwood offers a hilarious account of a year spent living with her father, a Catholic priest-by conversion and her alarmed mother in Priestdaddy. Mandy Len Catron’s How To Fall In Love With Anyone, is both a memoir and an exploration of the influence of love stories on the popular imagination. Alexandria Marzano-Lesnevich uses the real life case of a child murderer to reveal her own story of abuse as a young child in her often-harrowing The Fact of a Body.

War & Peace

We continue to consider the complex realities of war and peace this year. In Draw Your Weapons, theologian Sarah Sentilles explores the questions through two men, a WWII conscientious objector and Abu Ghraib guard. In his memoir Balcony Over Jerusalem John Lyons writes a fascinating account of living in the Middle East and a searing indictment of the Israeli occupation of the West Bank. In Kamila Shamsie’s new novel Home Fire she tells a nuanced story of a Muslim family in the increasingly hostile world of the United Kingdom.

The Biographers

Biographies are a perennial favourite and this year sees some wonderful accounts of both the unknown and the famous. Sarah Krasnostein’s The Trauma Cleaner, tells with great kindness the extraordinary story of Sandra Pankhurst, husband, father, drag queen, gender reassignment patient, small businesswoman, trophy wife. While in Our Man Elsewhere Thornton McCamish goes in search of the once very famous Australian writer and war correspondent Alan Moorehead. In The Enigmatic Mr Deakin, Judith Brett pulls back the curtain on Australia’s second Prime Minister and father of Federation.

Summer Reading

It’s time to start your Adelaide Writers’ Week reading. We have some great books on offer, and here are some suggestions across a range of titles. All should be for sale now, and if you can’t find something, don’t worry, it will be available at the Book Tent in the Pioneer Women’s Memorial Garden during Adelaide Writers’ Week.

BOOK TENT

All proceeds from the book tent help fund Adelaide Writers’ Week.

Where: Pioneer Women’s Memorial Garden
When: Sat 3 Mar – Thurs 9 Mar, 9am-6.30pm

Thank you for your support.
Adelaide Writers’ Week
Live Streaming

Adelaide Writers’ Week has always been a community event, and it is in this spirit of community that we are able to live stream the event from Monday 5 to Wednesday 7 March 2018. The service will run from the East Stage from 9:30am until 6pm and is absolutely free.

In an effort to keep the community feel to the event we are inviting retirement villages, libraries and schools to offer the streaming service to their patrons, clients and students. Our hope is that Writers’ Week will reach a wider audience and that being part of that audience will mean that you can share ideas and stories with your friends and neighbours.

Check out participating retirement villages, schools and libraries by visiting: adelaidefestival.com.au

Wherever you are we hope you are able to share the experience of being in the Pioneer Women’s Memorial Garden from Monday 5 to Wednesday 7 March in 2018.

Supported by Southern Cross Care and Office for the Ageing.

Sport In Australia

Join David Hill for lunch and a conversation about his recent book, The Fair and the Foul, an insider’s look at sport in Australia. From battles with big tobacco, to buying the AFL broadcast rights for the ABC, to trying to clean up Soccer Australia, Hill reminisces, remonstrates and considers the past, present and future of sport in Australia. Join him for a conversation with sports journalist Tom Rehn as they consider our national obsession – the good, the bad and the ugly.

Supported by Channel 9.

In his new novel, The Sparsholt Affair, Alan Hollinghurst tells the story of a group of friends, mostly gay men, whose lives have been affected in some way by the charming David Sparsholt. Sarah Winman’s novel Tin Man, tells the story of a young woman who returns home to help care for her father, recently diagnosed with Alzheimer’s. In very different ways, these two novels explore family, friendship and memory.

Chair Angela Savage

In her found novel, The Beat of the Pendulum, Catherine Chidgey chronicles a year of her life through the language she encountered daily. In Goodbye, Vitamin, Rachel Khong tells the story of three friends and two great loves. Both of these exquisite novels explore the complicated worlds of human love, loss and desire.

Catherine Chidgey is supported by Creative New Zealand & the Publishers Association of New Zealand.

Chair Michael Williams

In Ceridwen Dovey’s novel In the Garden of the Fugitives two people are united after a 20-year silence, he a wealthy benefactor, and she his one-time young protégé. In Beautiful Animals, two women discover a Syrian refugee washed up on a Greek Island. Join these two writers for a conversation about greed, desire and manipulation.

Chair Steven Gale

In Anna George’s poignant novel The Lone Child, an affluent woman saves a little girl she encounters on the beach. In her harrowing novel, The Choke, Sofie Laguna tells the story of a little girl abandoned to a world she cannot hope to understand. Both novels explore notions of class, violence, longing and, in their own ways, hope.

Chair Cath Kenneally

In her novel, The Beat of the Pendulum, Catherine Chidgey chronicles a year of her life through the language she encountered daily. In Goodbye, Vitamin, Rachel Khong tells the story of three friends and two great loves. Both of these exquisite novels explore the complicated worlds of human love, loss and desire.

Teju Cole is a writer, art historian and photographer. His fiction includes the novella Every Day is for the Thief and the award-winning novel Open City. He is the author of the essay collection, Known and Strange Things and most recently he has published Blind Spot, a book of photographs and accompanying texts.

Chair Simon Wilkinson

Chef and writer, Samin Nosrat, is a gifted teacher. Her students have included kids, teenagers and the celebrated food writer Michael Pollan. A former Chez Panisse cook, Nosrat comes to Adelaide with her revolutionary cookbook, Salt Fat Acid Heat. After listening to her talk about food movements, good cooking and why you need salt, you’ll be happy in the kitchen like never before.

Brain Food

Maggie Beer
Professor Ralph Martins

There are few adages as familiar as ‘you are what you eat’ and in their new book Maggie’s Recipe for Life, the celebrated cook teams up with an Alzheimer’s researcher, Professor Ralph Martins, to explore why diet matters and how it can be both healthy and delicious. No matter your stage of life, or your skills in the kitchen, this session will educate and inspire.

Chair David Sly

Invented Histories

Catherine McKinnon
Jane Rawson

This session brings together two writers who have taken moments in Australian history and imagined them into stories of blood, bonds and memory. In Storyland, Catherine McKinnon connects Flinders’ voyage to Illawarra to a 19th century farm and then well into the future. In From the Wreck, Jane Rawson connects the sinking of the steamship Admella with a creature seeking refuge on Earth.

Chair Amy T Matthews

American South

Thomas Mullen
Michael Farris Smith

From the rich tradition that is Southern literature come writers exploring different aspects of the American South. With Darktown and Lightning Men, Thomas Mullen writes crime novels set in pre-Civil Rights Atlanta. While with The Fighter and Desperation Road, Michael Farris Smith explores the hardscrabble worlds of the white poor. Join them for a conversation about a richly complicated place.

Chair Victoria Purman

Adelaide Festival Awards

Mark Brandi
Dervla McTiernan

The winners of the 2018 Adelaide Festival Awards for Literature will be announced including Fiction, Children’s Literature, Non-Fiction, Young Adult Fiction, John Bray Poetry and Premier’s awards. The winners of the Jill Blewett Manuscript award, as well as the recipients of the Barbara Hanrahan, Max Fatchen and Tungkununga Pintyathi fellowships will also be announced.

Chair Steven Gale

Small Towns

John Lyons
Sarah Sentilles

In his memoir, Balcony Over Jerusalem, John Lyons chronicles the six years he lived in Israel and, in doing so, offers a scathing account of the region’s treatment of the Palestinians. In her book, Draw Your Weapons, Sarah Sentilles explores her response to photographs of Abu Ghraib. Together these two thoughtful writers explore making war and the principle of peace.

Chair Peter Mares

War & Peace

Richard Fidler
Kári Gíslason

Richard Fidler and Kári Gíslason are good friends who share a passion for the sagas of Iceland. Filled with the rough and tumble of the Middle Ages – blood feuds, fearless women, murder – the sagas are amongst our greatest stories. This fascination takes Fidler and Gíslason on an epic journey of their own across Iceland in search of both sagas and a family mystery.

Chair Victoria Purman

Richard Fidler and Kári Gíslason are good friends who share a passion for the sagas of Iceland. Filled with the rough and tumble of the Middle Ages – blood feuds, fearless women, murder – the sagas are amongst our greatest stories. This fascination takes Fidler and Gíslason on an epic journey of their own across Iceland in search of both sagas and a family mystery.

Chair Victoria Purman
Ashley Hay is the author of the novels The Body in the Clouds, The Railwayman’s Wife and most recently A Hundred Small Lessons. This new novel takes place over a single hot summer in Brisbane. It tells the story of two women and a single house. Beautifully observed, it is about the moments and memories that make us human.

Chair: Victoria Purman

Louise Penny is the author of the best-selling Armand Gamache novels. Her most recent Glass Houses, sees Gamache’s tiny village under a threat which begins as a cloaked man takes up silent residence in the village green. Meanwhile in Montreal, Gamache is giving witness at what may be the trial that ends his career. Ambitious and thrilling, this is Penny at her best.

Chair: Robert Gott

Three writers explore the relationship between humans and animals. In Ceridwen Dovey’s collection Only the Animals, the souls of ten animals tell their story. In Eva Hornung’s The Last Garden a boy cohabits with horses and chooks after the loss of his parents. In Fiona McFarlane’s The Night Guest a tiger takes up residence with a woman living alone.

Chair: Laura Kroetsch

This session is supported by the Copyright Agency’s Cultural Fund.

With The Fact of a Body, lawyer turned writer Alexandria Marzano-Lesnevich has written an utterly compelling account of her experience of a death row case and its retrial. In part what makes this book so extraordinary are the painful memories of her childhood that butt up against the fate of a convicted child killer. Smart, generous and utterly compelling.

Chair: Steven Gale

In Rachel Khong’s stunning debut novel, Goodbye, Vitamin, a young woman, Ruth, returns home to help her mother care for her father, recently diagnosed with Alzheimer’s. Written as a diary, Ruth’s account sits against one she finds written by her father as he chronicled her early life. Together the stories create a wry and generous meditation on memory.

Chair: Rebekah Clarkson

With her new novel Home Fires, Kamila Shamsie has created a haunting re-telling of Antigone. Her Antigone is Aneeka, a Muslim girl living in London. When she and her twin discover their father died while en route to Guantanamo, her brother leaves to work for ISIS. Once banished, it is up to Aneeka to find a way to bring him home.

Chair: Georgina Godwin
Day Two

Sun 4 Mar Afternoon

1.15pm West Stage
Free Speech in a Chinese World
Clive Hamilton

In 2017 the international media was full of stories about the spread beyond China’s borders of the Communist Party’s campaign against free speech. Clive Hamilton became a victim of it when his book examining the influence of the Chinese government in Australia was dropped by his publisher for fear of retaliation from Beijing. In this session he exposes the full scope of the threat.

Chair Tony Shepard

1.15pm East Stage
Kinds of Madness
Alexander Maksik
Samanta Schweblin

In Alexander Maksik’s novel Shelter in Place a young man begins to suffer the symptoms of bipolar disorder after his mother kills a man with a hammer. In Fever Dream by Samanta Schweblin a woman lies in a hospital bed telling a young boy a story that sounds like a dream. In both novels the characters are unable to escape the story.

Chair Caroline Beck

2.30pm West Stage
The Book That Changed My Life
Rebekah Clarkson
Sofie Laguna
Wendy Orr

We all have a book that we love but for writers that relationship can be that much more complicated. This session brings together novelist and short story writer Rebekah Clarkson, Miles Franklin winning novelist and children’s writer Sofie Laguna, and children’s book writer Wendy Orr for a conversation about just that book.

Chair Adam Suckling

2.30pm East Stage
Words & Images
Teju Cole
Sarah Sentilles

Writer and photographer Teju Cole has written widely on photography, politics and his own experiences, most recently in Blind Spot. Sarah Sentilles is a writer and theologian who in Draw Your Weapons weaves together a story that considers photography, Abu Ghraib, and peace. Join two of our most original thinkers for a conversation about words and images.

Chair Angela Savage

3.45pm West Stage
Boat People
Felicity Castagna
Michelle de Kretser

In her novel No More Boats, Felicity Castagna explores the tensions surrounding new refugees through an Italian migrant convinced he can help stop the boats. In the novel The Life to Come, Michelle de Kretser explores the stories we tell about ourselves and the ways we invent both the past and the future. Join them for a conversation about immigration, identity and human folly.

Chair Angela Savage

3.45pm East Stage
Middle East Memoir
John Lyons

Award-winning journalist John Lyons spent six years covering the Middle East. One result is his memoir Balcony Over Jerusalem, an account of both life with his wife and son as well as a searing indictment of 50 years of Israeli occupation of the West Bank. His book is a wonderful blend of the delights of everyday life and an insightful political commentary.

Chair Jon Jureidini

5.00pm West Stage
Democracy and Its Crisis
A. C. Grayling

Prompted by Brexit and the US election, A. C. Grayling considered why the institutions of democracy are seemingly unable to protect themselves. The result is Democracy and Its Crisis, where Grayling looks at history in an effort to make sense of today’s threats to representational democracy. Compelling and often deeply disturbing, Grayling’s message is ultimately one of hope.

Chair Peter Mares

5.00pm East Stage
Detours
Tim Rogers

In his memoir Detours, Tim Rogers writes with grace and insight as he explores the complicated man that he is – and in this account the emphasis is on the man almost more than the musician. That said, this is a book about a musician, so there is a dark journey here – drink, fights and real regret.

Tin Man
Sarah Winman

The author of When God Was A Rabbit and A Year of Marvellous Ways has recently published Tin Man, an exquisite love story about two boys and a girl. At the heart of the novel are the childhood friends and one-time lovers Ellis and Michael. As the novel opens we meet the widowed Ellis looking back, longing for his lost loves.

A. C. Grayling
George Megalogenis

In Democracy and Its Crisis AC Grayling makes a compelling case for why the institutions of representative democracy are seemingly unable to cope with the rise of populism. With Australia’s Second Chance George Megalogenis makes a case for how Australia will survive the era of Trump. Join them for a wide-ranging conversation on democracy at home and abroad.

Missing Up
Pamela Brown

Written over three years, Pam Brown’s new collection of poems Missing Up is a reflection on the absurdities of materialism, one that begins in the everyday – a fridge, a bus stop, surf music on the radio. Witty, urbane and optimistic her collection is lyrical, political and a formidable read.

Chair Jon Jureidini

10.45am

Draw Your Weapons
Sarah Sentilles

Sarah Sentilles’ extraordinary book Draw Your Weapons is a meditation on war, peace, art history, photography, violence and faith. It tells the story of two men, one a conscientious objector from World War II and the second a soldier who served at Abu Ghraib. Through these stories and others, she makes a quietly compelling argument for peace.

Ashleigh Young

In See What Have I Done, Sarah Schmidt offers a thrilling new look at Lizzie Borden, a young woman famously charged with murder in 1892. In Darktown and Lightning Men Thomas Mullen creates two ‘Negro Officers’ negotiating the fierce restrictions of Jim Crow laws in 1950s Atlanta. Join these two writers for a conversation about reinventing the past.

Poet First, Then...
Patricia Lockwood

Both Patricia Lockwood and Ashleigh Young began their writing lives as poets. Both have produced terrific books of non-fiction, for Lockwood a memoir Priestdaddy and for Young a collection of essays, Can You Tolerate This? The former is an hilarious account of Lockwood’s return to live with her parents, and the latter a clever coming-of-age story told through one writer’s preoccupations.

Dedication
Mem Fox

For over 34 years, children have been reading Mem Fox’s iconic creation Possum Magic. Today, Mem Fox is the award-winning author of over 40 books, most recently I’m Australian Too. In addition to her writing, Fox is a long-time advocate for literacy.

Chair Ruth Starke

Strange Houses
Fiona McFarlane
Samanta Schweblin

In Fever Dreams, Samanta Schweblin’s first novel to appear in English, a woman in hospital tells the story of a fantastical encounter with a neighbour. In Fiona McFarlane’s The Night Guest an elderly woman believes there is a tiger in her house. In both novels the women are unsure what to believe, both are fearful, and both inhabit lonely landscapes.

Chair Steven Gale

Honorary Wombat
Jackie French

Jackie French is an award-winning writer for children and adults of all ages. She is an historian, ecologist and honorary wombat. Her many award-winning books include Diary of a Wombat, A Waltz for Matilda, and Pennies for Hitler. Her most recent books are Facing the Flame, Barney and the Secret of the French Spies and The Lily and the Rose.

Chair Danielle Clode

Desperation Road
Michael Farris Smith

Michael Farris Smith is the award-winning author of the novels Desperation Road, Rivers, and most recently The Fighter. What his books share is the broken-down landscape of the American South, the hardscrabble lives of its inhabitants and the inevitable violence of its men. Described at times as Southern noir, Farris Smith’s prose is spare and beautiful.

Chair Chris Flynn

MUD Club Prize

The MUD Club is an Adelaide-based philanthropic group who raise money to send Australian writers to literary festivals including Adelaide Writers’ Week. This new venture, the MUD Literary Prize is a prize for a debut novel by an Australian writer. The aim of the prize is both to celebrate and encourage fiction writers. This session will see the prize announced and will also feature a conversation with the winner.

Chair Danielle Clode

Beautiful Animals
Lawrence Osborne

Lawrence Osborne has been described as a modern Graham Greene. His novels are set in exotic locations and tell the stories of wealthy white Europeans trapped in difficult circumstances often of their own making. His novels include The Forgiven, The Ballad of a Small Player, Hunters in the Dark and most recently Beautiful Animals.

Chair Chris Flynn

Dust Devils
Cory Doctorow
Maja Lunde
Jennifer Mills

Cory Doctorow’s novel Walkaway is about tribes of people who attempt to walk away from society. Jennifer Mills’ novel, Dyschronia is about a town that awakes to find the sea has disappeared. Maja Lunde’s The History of Bees is a novel that chronicles a history of beekeeping. Join them for a conversation about our coming worlds.

Chair Angela Meyer

Into the Woods
Dervla McTiernan
Louise Penny

Beware what lurks in isolated places. Dervla McTiernan’s The Ruin tells the story of a suspicious suicide and a twenty-year-old overdose in country Ireland. In Louise Penny’s Glass Houses, a hooded figure takes up residence in Chief Superintendent Gamache’s home village in Quebec. Join them for a conversation about corruption and crime in isolated places.

With her first novel since her Miles Franklin winning Questions of Travel, Michelle de Kretser returns to Adelaide with The Life To Come. Set in Sydney, Paris and Sri Lanka, this new novel is about history, houses, and the stories we tell ourselves. Told through a handful of characters, the novel is wry, wise and often very funny.

Chair Georgina Godwin

From wartime Oxford to today’s London Alan Hollinghurst’s new novel, The Sparsholt Affair tells the story of a group of friends, mostly gay men, who have some connection to the charming David Sparsholt. Told in five parts, the novel tells the story of three generations of Sparsholt’s, and hinges on an affair that takes place in 1966.

Chair Angela Meyer

This session brings together two writers who explore the twilight world of the suburb. In Barking Dogs, Rebekah Clarkson offers a wry and often intimate look at a regional town in transformation. In Australia Day, Melanie Cheng explores a richly diverse group of characters, all longing to belong. Join them for a conversation about the burbs.

Chair Kate De Goldi

Thomas Mullen has written about the flu epidemic, dystopian futures and Depression era bank robbers. But most recently he has been writing about the Jim Crow era Atlanta and the story of two black men new to the police force. The books Darktown and Lightning Men are both crime novels and a startling examination on the eve of the Civil Rights movement.

Chair Steven Gale

Barbara Kingsolver has been called one of the most important writers of the 20th century. Her many books include The Poisonwood Bible, Prodigal Summer, The Lacuna and most recently Flight Behaviour. Her experiences from living all over the world have informed her writings as has her deep commitment to the environment.

Faulty Pilgrims

Laleh Khadivi

Iranian born American Laleh Khadivi is the author of an incredible trilogy of novels that include The Age of Orphans, The Walking and A Good Country. Together the novels tell the story of three generations of Kurdish Iranian men coming-of-age. The last of these is a young man growing up in California, who, in spite of his father’s best efforts, is becoming radicalised.

Chair Jon Jureidini

Ghachar

Vivek Shanbhag

Vivek Shanbhag is one of India’s most celebrated writers, and with the translation of his novel Ghachar Ghochar we can now read him in English. His brilliant novel tells the story of the Ghochar family. The event is a family reunion celebrating 180 years since the arrival of the first Irish relation – think grievances and grog. Wonderfully satiric and epic in scope, the novel has great fun with class, ambition and other human foibles.

Chair Michael Williams

Whipbird

Robert Drewe

Set at a winery in Victoria, Robert Drewe’s new novel, Whipbird, tells the story of the Cleary family. The event is a family reunion celebrating 180 years since the arrival of the first Irish relation – think grievances and grog. Wonderfully satiric and epic in scope, the novel has great fun with class, ambition and other human foibles.

Chair Caroline Beck

On Bees & Birds

Maja Lunde, Harriet McKnight

One time metaphor for sex, the birds and bees are increasingly a harbinger of doom. In Harriet McKnight’s novel Rain Birds, two women in a remote community find themselves at odds over a flock of cockatoos. In Maja Lunde’s novel The History of Bees, a century of beekeepers is lost to the future. For both writers, nature is a place to consider our future.

Chair Jane Rawson

Maja Lunde is supported by the Norwegian Literature Abroad/NORLA

Berlin Stories

Catherine Chidgey, David Foenkinos

Catherine Chidgey’s novel The Wish Child tells the story of two families living in Hitler’s Germany. Told by children, the novel explores the war from behind the domestic curtain of those trying to survive. David Foenkinos’ Charlotte is an imaginary biography-as-novel of Charlotte Salomon, a German Jewish artist who died at Auschwitz.

Chair Geordie Williamson

Maja Lunde is supported by the Norwegian Literature Abroad/NORLA

My Sister Rosa

Justine Larbalestier

Author of Liar, Zombies vs. Unicorns and How to Ditch Your Fairy, Justine Larbalestier’s most recent novel is My Sister Rosa, a chilling story about seventeen-year-old Che and his psychopathic younger sister Rosa. By turns a reflection on morality, faith, identity and race, the novel is a riveting read by a writer well versed in the unreliable narrator.

Chair Scott Westerfeld

Poetry Reading

Alison Flett, Nelson Hedditch, Rachel Mead, Manal Younus

Each year Adelaide Writers’ Week hosts a poetry reading with Peter Goldsworthy. The event is intended to pay homage to the event’s long association with poets and to celebrate contemporary poetry. This year’s poets include Alison Flett, Nelson Hedditch, Rachel Mead, Manal Younus and Rob Walker. Join them for readings that will be followed by a book signing.

Chair Chris Flynn

Cory Doctorow

Cory Doctorow is a science fiction writer, journalist, blogger, creative commons activist and co-editor of Boing Boing. When poet Patricia Lockwood and her husband went, by necessity, to live with her parents, they returned to the Church. Lockwood’s father is a Lutheran priest converted to Catholicism, and Lockwood’s chronicle of the year they spent together is insanely funny and brilliantly observed. This unsparing and affectionate story involves, among other things, a priest who plays guitar in his underwear.

Chair Kate De Goldi

Crowned Queen at 18, Victoria would go on to rule for an astounding 64 years. She would marry happily, have nine children, be widowed and, by the time of her Diamond Jubilee, reigned over 400 million subjects. Hers was a reign that saw the rise of movements including suffrage, anti-poverty and anti-slavery.

Join Julia Baird for a conversation about her timely biography Victoria: The Queen.

Chair Caroline Beck

Nick Brodie is a writer and historian. He is the author of 1787: The Lost Chapters of Australia’s Beginnings. More recently he has published The Vandemonian War, an account of the largely untold story of how the British colonial government occupied Van Diemen’s Land by deploying regimental soldiers and special forces, armed convicts and mercenaries.

Chair Jane Gleeson-White

The subtitle of Sarah Krasnostein’s brilliant book The Trauma Cleaner about Sandra Pankhurst reads One Woman’s Extraordinary Life in Death, Decay & Disaster. The title could go on to add – husband and father, drag queen, gender reassignment patient, sex worker, small businesswoman, trophy wife and deeply compassionate human being. Krasnostein’s book is also about hoarders and trauma cleaners and loneliness and hope.

Chair Kate De Goldi

One of the most astonishing facts in Kate Cole-Adams’ Anaesthesia, is that doctors don’t actually know how anaesthetics works. Cole-Adams book is a fascinating mix of reporting, medical history, philosophy and memoir. At its heart is the idea of consciousness not only under anaesthesia but in our everyday lives. What she discovers will appeal to professionals and patients alike.

Chair Ashley Hay

Mandy Len Catron’s essay ‘To Fall in Love with Anyone, Do This’ was one of the most read articles in the New York Times in 2015.
